BIRD OF PARADISE PLANTS

DETAILED DESCRIPTION AND CULTURAL INSTRUCTIONS

The Bird of Paradise plant (Strelitzia Reginae) belongs to the prosaic African banana family of herbs. It was named for Charlotte, Princess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, who was queen to George III of Great Britain.

It is very different from the regular garden subject. This gorgeous flower with its unusual combination of red, yellow, blue and orange is a favorite of flower lovers everywhere. They last from two to three weeks after cutting by changing the water every two or three days. This beautiful exotic tropical plant is easy to grow and requires very little care and attention. It is sun-loving, but will thrive very well in part shade, and prefers a fairly rich, well drained sandy loam soil. Deep planting should be avoided. The juncture of the roots should be about level with the soil surface.

Once a year fertilize with a top dressing of well rotted manure or a small amount of a well balanced plant food. The amount given will depend upon the size of the plant. Water moderately at all times, however, do not let the soil become soggy.

It can be grown outdoors in mild and tropical climates. In cold climates the plant may be grown in a pot or tub, setting the plant outdoors in mild weather and bringing it indoors during the cold season.

At maturity these plants may bear from 25 to 50 flowers at one time.

ANTHURIUM PLANTS

DETAILED DESCRIPTION AND CULTURAL INSTRUCTIONS

The Anthurium is a member of the Arum family, originating in Central America, and is unquestionably the world's most exotic tropical flower. The flowers last to perfection for a long time and if not cut, the plants are perpetually in bloom. As one flower fades another takes its place, so they are always "in season". When cut, the flowers last from four to six weeks and they are therefore fast becoming America's least expensive fresh flower.

Anthuriums come in the most breathtaking variety of shades such as red, pink, coral, orange, white, salmon, scarlet and variegated. A healthy plant, at maturity, generally produces from 8 to 10 flowers each year.

Anthuriums grow best in a high humidity (75%-80%) and also a fairly high temperature 80° average in daytime and no cooler than 65° at night, however, they tolerate a range of 45° - 100°. They prefer shade, the smaller plants only need about 25% sunlight. All plants need protection from both wind and direct sunshine and ventilation should be held down to a minimum. For best results a mixture of woodshavings and peat moss should be used. Almost any good commercial fertilizer can be used. Frequent weak applications will greatly benefit the plants if applied every 2 or 3 weeks. They require good drainage. The plants are remarkably free from insects and diseases.

Anthuriums are propagated from seeds and suckers. Seeds form on the older flowers and may be planted in sphagnum moss and grown in the same manner as mature plants. Suckers are removed close to the stem and grown likewise.
